Deadly footy players make Deadly Choices

Steve Renouf, James Roberts and Lote Tuquiri were special guests at the launch of Deadly Choices during half time of a reserves game at Jilara Oval in March.

Several hundred also turned out to see three games of footy, all of which were won by Guyala.

Deadly Choices aims to empower people to make healthy choices for themselves and their families – to stop smoking, to eat good food and exercise daily.

Deadly Choices also encourages our people to access their local Community-Controlled Health Service and complete an annual 'Health Check'.

All three are ex-Broncos players – Lote & Steve have played for Queensland Maroons and Australia while James has played Country Origin and Indigenous All Stars.

May deadline for horse care

'Owning a horse carries the same responsibilities as raising a child'. That's the message Council wants the community to take on board as local laws around management of the animals will be enforced at the end of this month.

Mayor Ross Andrews said that means any horse found wandering the community not secured or registered would be removed.

"The laws have actually been in place for the past 18 months and now we are going to implement them," he said.

"Horses need to be in horse paddocks.

"They shouldn't be roaming around causing health issues, and they are they are accidents waiting to happen if they are on our roads."

CEO Janelle Menzies said they were working on the logistics.

"Council will be holding a public meeting soon to discuss those logistics with stakeholders," she said. "We may also be able to help with finding somewhere to keep your horse, as long as it is registered and microchipped. We'll also be holding a horse sale at towards the end of the month."

If you have any queries contact Janelle Menzies on 4056 9120.

ABOVE: Your Fitness, a 24-hour gym in Cairns, said they had the pleasure of working with the Yarrabah female rugby league team late last month.

"The girls killed it on the gym floor," they said.
