

Ewen's promise: Palm Island won't close

MEMBER for Herbert Ewen Jones has given a commitment that no Queensland Indigenous community, including Palm Island, would be forcibly closed by the Federal Government.

He made the commitment during a peaceful but fiery vocal protest in Townsville last Friday.

National titles bring boxing medals home

Last weekend saw a top effort from Chris Evers Jnr and Reggie Palm Island to claim a gold and a silver medal each at the Australian titles on the Gold Coast.

Trainer Chris Evers Snr said both boys fought the best boxers from all around Australia in their divisions and both ended up with medals.

"It's a testament to their hard work and dedication that two boxers from a small remote community could compete with and beat the best boxers in the country," he said.

"Chris is the new Australian U15 38kg champion.

"He beat an opponent from NSW in the final winning by TKO in the 3rd round.

"Reggie won the silver medal in the men's 52kg final at the Australian Titles, losing a close points decision to his opponent from Victoria.

"Reggie now has to focus on his next fight in Papua New Guinea on the 20th of June."

MEANWHILE several young boxers have been training at the Palm island PCYC gym in preparation for coming tournaments at Rockhampton on May 9th and on Magnetic Island a week later.

Trainer Ray Dennis said he could only take 10 from the list to Rockhampton unless he could hire a bigger bus.

"Some of the new boys will go on to become top Palm Island boxers," he said.

Mr Dennis said top Rockhampton boxer Nathan Baira has also been training strongly with the club.

More than 200 men, women and children issued a big political statement to the Federal Government at the rally and that was: they don't want forced closures of Western Australian Aboriginal communities.

They gathered at Anne Street just after 8am and walked 1km to Townsville's busiest intersection at the corner of Road River Road and Nathan Street. Their permit allowed the intersection to be closed to all traffic for 15 minutes by police.

Townsville Co-ordinator Meyalah Blackman said "We will be forcing the closure of the major intersection at Nathan street and Ross River Road for up to 15 minutes so that community and government will feel what it's like to experience forced closure that will significantly impact your life."

The participants sat in the middle of the two roads as about 12 police and liaison officers watched on.

Speeches were delivered by MC Max Lenoy, Professor Gracelyn Smallwood, Reverend Shayne Blackman, Les Moffitt from the union movement and a representative of Amnesty International.

After that they gathered on the nearby area at the front of the office of Liberal Federal Member for Herbert Ewen Jones.

Mr Jones later came out to address the crowd and was asked about the issue as protestors chanted 'Aboriginal land always will be'.

"The Government's three main issues are kids in schools, jobs and keeping the community safe," Mr Jones said.

Mr Lenoy questioned Mr Jones for a "definitive yes or no" about whether he 2 supported or objected to the WA closures.

"It is not a yes or no question. It is a WA issue," he said. But Mr Jones did give a commitment that Palm Island would never be closed down after a question from Professor Smallwood. Mr Lenoy thanked Mr Jones for, "having the guts to address the protest."

"Other politicians were asked to come and didn't turn up," Mr Lenoy said.

Stolen wages on Labor Government's agenda

Queensland Treasurer, Minister for Employment and Industrial Relations and Minister for Aboriginal & Torres Strait Islander Partnerships Curtis Pitt has said his Government will honour its commitment to pay Stolen Wages claimants $21 million outstanding from Peter Beattie's original Wages and Savings Reparations offer made in 2002.

"We will honour our election commitment to compensate Aboriginal & Torres Strait Islander Queenslanders who had their wages stolen," he said.

"We're creating a $21 million compensation fund for those affected by these discriminatory policies of the past.

"The government is working to establish a taskforce to oversee the allocation of these funds, and we're making this a priority."

Mr Pitt said the taskforce would include key stakeholders and his Government would consult widely to ensure it has the right mix of people to get the job done.

"I know that we can never erase the hurt and sorrow caused by past actions but we can seek to rectify past injustice by properly compensating those affected," he said.

"Labor will always support social justice for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Queenslanders."

At a Community Cabinet meeting in Townsville last month NAIDOC person of the year Professor Gracelyn Smallwood said she hoped the Government would honour that pre-election commitment to pay Stolen Wages.

"Days before the election, the Labor mob made a pledge to Elders, that if they won, they will open up Stolen Wages claims," she said.

Over the past year there have been numerous Stolen Wages meetings organised by the Queensland Council of Unions with a theme of 'It's Time To Settle'.

Iggy Park visit to St Michael's a success

A group of staff and students from Ignatius Park College visited Palm Island last month to present St Michael's school with a collection of sports gear and stationery donated as a result of their Close the Gap campaign in Townsville.

While this gesture was greatly appreciated by the St Michael's community, the most beneficial experience of the day was the extremely positive interactions made between the IPC lads and the St Michael's students.

The boys were divided up and allocated to various classrooms for parts of the day, which was a terrific experience for the students.

The visit will be a lasting experience which will stay with the boys for a long time to come and hopefully play a small part in raising awareness of Indigenous health issues and reconciliation within our community.

Thanks to all those members of the community who assisted on some way with this campaign.

2015 'HIPPIY' program underway through CFF

The Cathy Freeman Foundation is delighted to announce 25 families will be starting the Home Interaction Program for Parents and Youngsters Program (HIPPIY) this month, alongside 11 families continuing from the inaugural group in 2014.

CFF Early Learning Coordinator, Nazareth Youngblutt, said she was excited by the growth in HIPPIY into the second year on Palm Island.

"We've started the year really well and have signed up 25 families and four HIPPIY tutors who'll deliver the weekly program" Mrs Youngblutt said. "I see great potential in these tutors; they are young parents who will be working with other families. Program delivery will begin with families once the Tutor Training has been finalised in the new few weeks. All four tutors are very excited to work and build relationship with their child first before delivering to other families in the program."

HIPPIY is supported by research that shows that children's most powerful learning comes from their family, and that getting a strong start at school sets children up for life.

PALM Island held an Anzac Day commemorative service which was well attended by locals, including school children, who laid wreaths.

This year members of the Walsh and Coolburra families held a special service at the Palm Island cemetery at 9am in honour of former servicemen, the late Bill Coolburra and Keith Walsh.

Bill Coolburra served in the Army for a long period and was a famed "Tunnel Rat" during the Vietnam War, Keith Walsh served in Africa being one of the brave "Rats of Tobruk" fighting the Germans and Italians.

Cr Eddie Walsh said it was a solemn occasion.

"Keith Walsh was my grandfather and was shot in the leg by the Germans in North Africa," he said.

"He died in 1978 and it was great to visit the cemetery here and honour them."

Bill Coolburra's widow Edna Coolburra said it was emotional at the cemetery.

"We has close family there and Bill will never be forgotten," she said.

Mayor Alf Lacey was also at the cemetery.

At 10.30am people gathered at the Palm police station and made the short walk to the nearby Mall for the laying of the wreaths. Cr Walsh said the Australian, Aboriginal and Torres Strait flags were raised.

Palm Army reservists there included Rio Walsh, Frank Sibley, Moe Lenoy and Bryan Conway.

Around 1pm many gathered at the Coolgaree Sports Bar and Grill where they enjoyed a few drinks, lots of friendship and even some Two Up.
