We did it!

Palm Island Rodeo 'a wicked weekend'

People are already saying they can't wait for the next one - the good news is it may be as soon as six months away! But by every measure this weekend's Palm Island Indigenous Rodeo has been a huge success.

Pauline & Shaun Shortjoe (pictured) surely showed they knew their rodeo business over the weekend.

A welcome to country offered by Alan Palm Island opened the two-day event.

Mayor Alf Lacey said when it came to rodeos, "Aboriginal people across this country are the best".

"Rodeo isn't strange to our people because a lot of our fathers, mothers and grandparents were stockmen in our life," he said.

More than 90 head of cattle helped riders from Palm, Woorabinda, Cherbourg and even Melbourne hit the dust in an exciting series of events which saw only two riders reach a qualifying time of 8-seconds - Cherbroug rider Cody Bond & Woorie rider Robert Oakley.

Overall winner for the weekend (pictured inside) was Cody Bond.

Pauline Shortjoe said "we did it!"

"We had the best weekend and we can't wait to do it again," she said.
