Yarrabah on show in Cairns

An exhibition of works by past and present students and staff from Yarrabah State School has gone on show at the Cairns Museum and was opened last week by Mayor Ross Andrews.

'Djabu Gilga Yigan' - Land Sea Sky - is a collection of paintings and other works, which also included an opportunity for Cairns residents and tourists to visit the community for a day (yesterday, Wednesday 12 December) as part of the installation.

The day included a Welcome to Country, morning tea at St Alban's Church, visits to significant places at Gribble Point, Bilma and Wungu Beach, a tour of the community with locals sharing their history and stories, and a visit to Yarrabah Art Centre and Menmuny Museum, including a boardwalk tour.

A Cairns Post article about the exhibition was also featured on the Townsville Bulletin, Herald Sun (Melbourne), NT News (Darwin) and The Mercury (Hobart) web pages.

If it's not fire, it's water!

In late November Yarrabah moved to Level 1 water restrictions after a dry year - likely now resolved - and a firey start to the summer. Last week there were further water issues when routine maintenance revealed an issue which meant water had to be turned off during a weekday afternoon for a period of time. The Council asks that everyone be aware of both fire and water issues around the community - both a potential source of danger to everyone if not looked after the way they should be - with care!

THERE they are again, sealing and delivering better roads around our community - thanks again to our hard working road crew for their great work!!!!

Life saving medallions

Learning to swim at a young age comes as by the Sea but their safety is imperative - initiatives from Wugu Nyambil.

Job seekers Greg Miller, Carson Smith, Arthur Maloney and Gundyl Costello were recently awarded their Bronze Medallions to help set them up for safety and success.

The aim of the award - considered to be the minimum standard for qualified lifesavers - is to develop the level of knowledge, judgement, technique and physical ability required to carry out safe water rescues.

They are not so easily won with theory lessons in safe water practices; survival in the water; self-preservation; recognising an emergency; assessment before and during a rescue; priorities for rescue; CPR theory; acceptance of responsibility; use of bystanders; emergency care and contacting emergency services.

ATSI Social Justice Commissioner June Oscar has sent t-shirts for those who participated in Wiyi Wiyi Ya I U Thangani - Women's Voice Workshops earlier this year, as worn here by members of the Djungaal Elders Group.

The practical requirements include demonstrating CPR, swimming 400 metres within 13 minutes, swimming 100 metres each of freestyle, backstroke, breaststroke and sidestroke, swimming 50 metres to a patient and towing them back in just over three minutes, and demonstrating a range of survival and rescue skills, including managing a spinal injury in shallow water and taking rescue initiatives.

The medals will help to ensure kids can enjoy a swim at our community swimming pool under the watchful eye of our newly qualified lifeguards.

New signs unveiled

Three new signs at Jilgi, Ganyjira and Buddabadoo, to mark the Gungandji and Mandingalbay Yidinji Trustee Area were officially unveiled last week, on what local MP Curtis Pitt described as an “important day for the Southern Prescribed Body Corporate Board at Yarrabah”.

“This group has shown tremendous leadership and vision since the Native Title Determination in 2012 to ensure continuity of culture, retention of language and vision for the future, including eco-tourism opportunities,” he said.

“I was very honoured to be asked to say a few words of support.”

The signs were funded by Wet Tropics Management Authority and developed by the Gungandji-Mandingalbay Yidinji People’s Prescribed Body Corporate Board of Directors with the assistance of volunteer artists Maynard Bulmer and Connie Richards.

Cordeau Jackson-Singleton, Amaziah Andrews-Murgha, Iyona Mundraby and Lavin Keyes jnr, along with William Mossman jnr who is not in the picture here, have recently been selected to play for the Cairns & District Rugby League Development Squad. They have been training every Sunday and hope to play for Cairns next year.

Well done boys!
